Independent credit rating agency Saigon Ratings has just released its Credit Rating Surveilliance Report. Based on the report, Vietjet is considered a long-term credit rating of "vnBBB-" with a "Stable" outlook. This rating reflects the agency's view of Vietjet's ability to maintain its credit rating in the short and medium term, based on the strong growth potential in cargo and international passenger transport.

Vietjet's outlook continues to be highly rated, thanks to its revenue growth capability and potential positive cash flow in the future. The airline is also proactive in diversifying internal management and planning to increase charter capital, ensuring the ability to fulfill debt obligations. With a strategy to develop diverse aviation products and services on a modern digital platform, Vietjet is increasingly attracting more domestic and international customers, promising a sustainable and stable growth future.
